

Research project: The experience of Muslim Legal Practitioners

Are you a legal practitioner in NSW, or have you practised law in NSW in the past 5 years?

Do you identify as Muslim?

Dr Sandy Noakes (University of Sydney Law School) and Dr Maria Bhatti (Western Sydney University School of Law) are researching the experience of Muslim legal practitioners in NSW, exploring how they navigate professional identity, workplace culture, and ethical obligations in legal practice. We invite you to take part in a confidential 45-minute interview, in person or online.

Scan a QR code below, or tap a link, to find out more or register your interest:

Information Statement

Register your interest

Registering asks for your contact details so we can arrange an interview.

This project has been approved by the University of Sydney Human Research Ethics Committee.
Approval number: 2026/HE000301.