About Nikki Robinson

Nikki is a Real Estate Partner at Clayton Utz and the Partner in Charge of the Sydney Office of the firm. With over 25 years' experience advising on real estate, urban renewal, precinct development and infrastructure projects, she has worked on some of the largest property and infrastructure projects in Australia. Nikki is also involved in a number of the state's affordable and social housing projects (advising both the State and Federal Government, developers and Community housing providers). Nikki is known for her hands-on and commercial approach, and has earned the reputation as one of the leading property lawyers in Australia, and is consistently ranked as "leading" in Real Estate with Chambers, Legal500, Best Lawyers and Doyle's Guide.

Prior to taking on her current management role in Sydney, Nikki led the Real Estate team nationally for 6 years. Nikki has taken on leadership roles within the firm and the property industry – she also sits on the National Board for the Property Council of Australia, to allow her to contribute to outcomes that deliver better workplaces, including through building more diverse and balanced industries.

In addition to her work commitments, Nikki's other job is a mother of 3 teenage girls'. This more than anything helps her improve her negotiation and time management skills and builds the compassion and understanding of working with intergenerational groups.
